
Memories

They were years to remember,
For they were filled with fun and laughter
Years of growing together,
Discovering, enjoying each other

Sliding in pristine winter snow
Smelling spring flowers, watching our kids grow
Soaking in sun-filled summer days, admiring our glow
With colourful fall behind us, wishing time moved slow

Now at a crossroad where a chapter ends
It will be difficult to say goodbye, dear friend
Though only the joyful memories of season's past remain,
Know that all the love and caring was not in vain

For there's not a bond stronger
Than the love that binds a family together
A picture of us, frozen in time
To keep, forever in our mind

Harvest of Emotional Energy

It was a sunny day in May
A sight I will never forget
A tear welling in your eye,
Rolling down your cheek as I watched, helplessly

Though emotions visit every day,
Sometimes as tears of joy or sadness
This moment was unique
And never left me

Emotions are too often kept at bay
These felt raw, pure, with trust and openness
Their energy distilled to something simple, enigmatic—
A harvest of emotional energy
